

News Release

Date: 9 March, 2007

BESPAK'S BUSINESS ACHIEVEMENT REWARDED

Bespak, a leader in medical devices for inhaled drug delivery and anaesthesia, has been named manufacturer of the year in the Mayor's Awards for Business Achievement in West Norfolk.

The award, which recognised Bespak's business development both globally and locally, also acknowledged the company's dedication to the local education sector providing pupil mentoring and apprenticeship schemes. It also praised Bespak's environmental management programme to reduce waste to landfill by 25%.

The winners were announced at the ceremony hosted by West Norfolk mayor Anne Clery-Fox at King's Lynn Town Hall on March 2.

Chris Halling, Head of Corporate Communications at Bespak, said: "I am delighted that we have won this award. By developing medical devices for some of the world's leading inhaled therapies, our employees are helping people to breathe. Everyone at Bespak knows that our efforts have a direct impact on people's lives, so we take our work seriously.

"It is especially good to be recognised locally as both the company and our people invest so much of their time into projects that couldn't work without genuine partnership with the business and local community."

The Mayor's Awards for Business Achievement were first launched in 1989, with just one category. Since then there have been over 50 awards recognising business achievement.